The Country Weekly Newspaper

"What do you think of the future of country newspapers?"

This question was asked Mr. Wright A. Patterson, a teacher of journalism, at a recent meeting of the Western Canadian editors in the course of a conversation which the success of big city dailies and periodicals to increase circulation in rural sections was noted, and the editorial content of these publications discussed. In answer, Mr. Patterson painted a picture of the future as he sees it.

Admitting that there is a place for the small weekly newspaper, and that is, and probably nowhere more decided, than in the prairies of Western Canada, Mr. Patterson said: "How is the situation to be maintained, improved, developed; and are our Western Canadian editors alive to the situation and endeavoring to meet it? If they are, they will undoubtedly receive the public support they will so well deserve."

Both weekly newspaper editors and the reading public will be interested in Mr. Patterson's opinions as it is presented in a recent issue of The Publicist of Agriculture. While it is too lengthy for complete reproduction in this column, except may be given:

"There has been, within the last quarter of a century, a radical change in the people of the rural communities—the people of the towns and on the farms. Up to a quarter of a century ago the country people were centered in the town, and beyond the town their market place. It was a day's task for the farmer and his family to get as far away from home as the nearest town, possibly not more than three or four miles away. The only form of conveyance was the farm wagon, or the horse and buggy. The roads were narrow stretches of dirt that were, during portions of the year, practically impassable. Fewer than one-half of the roads of the rural areas of the time of town and farms did not get beyond the municipal lines. It was the exceptional rural family whose children went away to school. The students at universities were largely from the cities and the number attending universities was small as compared to the present time."

"Under such conditions the horizon of the rural family was extremely limited. Its members had practically no contact with the outside world and quite naturally the interests of these rural people centred about themselves and their neighbors."

"The country newspaper that catered to that local interest, that recorded the events in which the people of each community played a part, was satisfactory to the people of these communities. To this local news coverage many editors added some general news and entertainment material and made for that time a satisfying newspaper that met very rural readers' demand."

"Today conditions are radically different. The automobile and good roads have made travel possible. The day's trip is to the city, anywhere from 10 to 100 miles from the rural home. The world comes to us in the form of thousands of the boys of the farm, of distant training camps and associated them with boys from every section of the nation, and with every class. It sent them across the ocean to far distant lands. It widened their horizon to include practically the entire world and all classes of people and all forms of activities. It gave them a new outlook and new interests. That is 18 and 20 years ago. The farm and town boys of the World War days are the men, the heads of families, of the rural communities of these days."

"The radio has brought the world to the rural community fireside. It has widened the view of the people of these communities until it includes all Canada, the United States, England, France, Japan, Australia and every known polis in the world."

"Go to the universities to-day and a large percentage of the students are from the farms. These young people are acquiring for the first time selves and taking back to the rural homes from which they come, an increased interest in national and world affairs, in history in the making, in arts and sciences and in literature."

"As a class the rural audience of to-day is a more intelligent audience than that of the city. The people of the towns and farms have to-day a wider interest than the average individual of the city. They are in a more provincial."

"It is such an audience the country newspaper of to-day and to-morrow must appeal to it if it is to live. It must bring to them intelligent interpretation of what is happening throughout the world because it is to-day their world. They have to live in it, and to bring to them interpretations of such happenings. They do not want rumors and surmises, but they do want statements of fact and what such facts mean. They will buy the newspaper that gives them such information."

Weekly newspaper editors are awakening to these new conditions. They are realizing that it is quality not quantity of reading matter that is demanded. The editor who can be met in the limited space of eight to 10 or 12-page papers, giving them time to cover the community happenings and with interpretations of events in the nation and the world, and a reasonable amount of entertainment.

For the paper that does these things there is a future. Such a paper will cover all of the to-day's national and world interests of its readers and will meet the demand of the newspaper needs as to leave no necessary place for a paper from the outside. Papers are to-day in a much greater than that of the past; and the majority of the editors of country newspapers are awake to these things. The small minority that are not, or do not awaken will, in time, pass out of the picture."

Reclamation Work

Applications from Farmers Keep Coming In, And Work Progresses

Mr. Robert W. Wist, minister of agriculture, received a report from Dr. E. S. Archibald, director of experimental farms and chairman of the advisory committee which has the reclamation work in hand. The report indicated active co-operation from the western farmers to the undertaking.

Up to date 80 townships in drought-frequent areas have joined the community effort by which much work has been done in the way of soil and water conservation, and the departmental experts in cropping their lands, sowing grasses and in other ways co-operate to protect the country from soil drifting and other drought.

Applications for engineering and other assistance in the construction of water conservations are being received. This assistance is asked for in the way of dugouts, small irrigation dams for farm and ranch for acre crop productions, flood schemes and pumping schemes. "They are pouring into the department at the rate of 60 to 100 a day," the report said.

"On July 5, there were 102 applications from groups of farmers asking for assistance in dugouts and small watering dams, averaging 25 farms per application. There were more than 700 more applications from individual farmers."

"Over 70 applications have been received and a certain amount of engineer investigation already done on many of these for the construction of community dams for domestic, land irrigation or animal in transit water supply," the report said.

"Amongst those groups have already made arrangements for the engineering staff at Wild Horse project, White Mud project, Souris, Douton, Crystal City dam and others."

"An engineering staff consisting of one senior engineer, nine engineers, and one junior engineer, has been engaged in the work and in the co-operation of the Dominion's hydroelectric service, which has supplied necessary instruments, are busily engaged in field engineering work. Reports on recommendations are coming in from these engineers rapidly."

New Form of Flight

Man in Florida Has Used Wings With Success

The idea of strapping "wings" on a man was originated in some district of the Orient.

At the Science Museum in South Kensington there is the original "Ornithopter" designed by Froult in 1902. It is a beautiful work but never flew. It seems now that a number of flight has been successfully made in China.

Known as the "human bat" who only recently flew over Daytona Beach, Florida, with "wings" of his design attached to his arms and "webbed feet."

The earliest dreamer of flight was a man who would have done the same if only they had had some means of safely alighting. The parachute has made bird-like flight possible. Once the airman has freed himself from an airplane, a safety height of 100 feet to fall 1,000 feet at a gathering speed of 100 to 150 m.p.h. At this speed he can glide bank, turn, or execute any maneuver.

Old Game Revived

Chinese Again Playing Polo After Lapse Of 300 Years

For the first time in three centuries two Chinese teams recently galloped about a polo field. The historical meeting of General Chang Chen's 32nd National army held at the temple of agriculture at the Chinese National Museum.

Although the Chinese were playing polo 1,000 years ago, the game was lost until 1928 when it was rediscovered.

On the continent, Mr. Allen will confer with the French and Belgian organizations regarding the official part of the program and will complete arrangements for the polo to be followed and the transport and building facilities.

He has indicated, however, that "our old allies propose to make our visit next year the occasion for a great display of our comradeship and international friendship. It will be a tremendous experience for the 'troops' and their families."

In London, Mr. Allen will confer with the Canadian polo association, the Dominion Service League, the Canadian High Commission and the Canadian polo clubs.

He will be followed by the polo which will be held during the four-day visit of the Pilgrims to the English polo fields.

The arrangements for the Pilgrims and whom Mr. Allen will call with the English, are Canadian polo clubs, the Canadian polo association, the Imperial War Graves Commission, the Canadian Pacific, and the Canadian polo clubs.

Throughout his trip, Mr. Allen will be accompanied by Mr. J. R. Bowler, Secretary of the Secretariat of the Canadian Legion, Dominion Command.

Delegates Entertained

At the annual convention of the Saskatchewan Rural Municipal Association, the delegates and wives were entertained at a dinner.

Mr. J. R. Bowler, Mr. J. C. Patten, Mr. L. L. Ladd, and greatly enjoyed the picture "In Caliente" shown at the Capitol theatre.

Pretty Wife (on stand in divorce case): "It was the old story, a horse and a jockey can never agree."

Husband (roaring, as he shook off the restraining hand of his attorney): "See here, don't you call me a horse?"

Donaldson Atlantic Line

Change of Name Announced By Agents

Donaldson Atlantic Line is the new name for the former Anchor-Donaldson Line, as it was announced by Cunard White Star Limited, who are their agents in Canada and the United States.

"The change of name signifies the return of the Canadian-Scottish passenger service to complete control by the Donaldson interests which originally promoted it," stated George D. Huband, deputy chief Canadian representative of Cunard White Star, in an interview at Montreal.

"The Donaldson Line itself commenced its Canadian operations in 1870 and has since then maintained continuous with its Canadian operations in service between Canada and its home port of Glasgow. Its growth has also been marked by the acquisition of the old Allan Line service to South America, the development of the Canadian-British-Channel trade and the service from Vancouver to Great Britain."

Empire Trade Agreements

New Deal With Canada Desired By Australian Premier

A new trade agreement with Canada embodying additional features is desired by Australia, Prime Minister Joseph Lyons of that Dominion said in his speech.

"We are looking forward to a new agreement with Australia," said Prime Minister R. B. Bennett.

The empire trade agreements negotiated in 1932 had proved satisfactory and had brought about an increase in trade. Australia was anxious to have a new agreement with Canada to accomplish this. While it was not possible for the Australian exports to Canada to exceed more rapidly than Australia's imports to Canada, Australia had no grievance and did not consider it had got the best of the bargain.

Happy Landing

Thrilling Episode Enacted At Moncton Military Airfield

A jumper whose plane was shot down in midair was saved by a fellow parachutist at a thrilling battle in the Atlantic on route to Moncton.

Soldier No. 1000, a member of the Canadian Air Force, was shot down in midair and struck another parachutist, Soldier Krasikoff, who had been dropped separately.

They fell rapidly, until 200 feet above the earth Noakoff found the cord of Krasikoff's reserve chute and opened it in time to check their fall. Both landed safely.

Dominion Organizer Leaves For Europe To Complete Plans

Ben W. Allen, Dominion Organizer of the Vinyl Pilgrimage which is being conducted by the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League, sailed on the Cunard White Star Liner, Carpathia, for Europe. The arrangements for the reception and billeting of Canada's Peace Army veterans are being made by the Canadian Legion.

They will be entertained in the Stabilizer of an airplane after leap from the wing, lost his chute and hurtled down. In midair he struck another parachutist, Soldier Krasikoff, who had been dropped separately.

CHAPTER IX.—Continued

"Walk straight up the road till you pass my house and see a path lead into the woods. It's terrible steep and I ain't attempted it for years, though Matt and I got engaged to be married up there. It's the place to go in. You find our 'hut' cut in the bark with a heart round 'em. Victor Tubbs is a real good carver. If you run into anybody from the Adam ranch, Nancy, tell 'em 'we'll wait extra' and if it's Matt, I would mind peekin' in my bedroom window and see if Tubbs is sleepin'. He's got a delicate stomach, and his supper didn't go down night."

Suppressing a smile at this unique request, Matt turned and started on his way. The afternoon was all her own, and it was impossible not to feel a thrill at this unbelievable December day. The sun was warm; yet the paper reported a blizzard raged in the north. It was indeed incredible; and next week Nancy mused regretfully, the Country Club would be gay with winter sports.

"I wouldn't be there anyway," she consided herself, as the headache she had been suffering had faded from her head.

"I raised his head again. "I'd be an Edgewise wiping dishes for Mother, or mopping up puddles of snow brought in by Phil. Here's the Tubbs abode already. I must see if Victor's asleep."

"I'll go in and see him, and then sighs referred to that place where such things go when we forget ourselves.

Aurora's house which set back a space from the road, was a one-storey affair, covered with trees, bushes, and flowers in a group of planted pines. Nancy stepped up the path and peered in at a window. By pressing her face against the glass she made out an ornate iron bedstead on which the recruit Tubbs was snoring peacefully; while on his wife's rich layer and an open jacket she stood on a nearby chair.

Thinking of Victor's "delicate stomach," the girl chuckled as she turned away. No wonder his parents had been so anxious and told him Nancy. Names didn't agree with him; but vowed that Cousin Columbine should hear the story. It was to good to keep.

She still smirched as she remained, but that part of the house the woods seemed to elude her. Considering that she had missed it, Nancy stepped aside to escape the dust from an approaching trick, and recognizing the hasty figure of Matt when Adam hailed him as he was about to go.

Although on one pretext or another, Matt had dropped in almost every day of the past two weeks Nancy had not seen Matthew since his blushing exit after colliding with the girl. She was thinking now, the girl observed, and wondered if it were the same blushing or a new one for her special benefit. She said, "as a shy smile" hovered across his face on recognizing her. "You know you stand if you're in a hurry, but Aurora would be still to-morrow. And will you show me how I can reach that hill? I've lost my way."

As Matt said lightly from the truck to stand beside her, Nancy was again impressed with the young man's appearance. His bluish hair subsidied; but something told her that he was struggling with embarrasment and furious with himself because of it.

"You should have turned off just after you passed Aurora's," he told her, "it's no wonder you missed the trail, so few go up that way. It's an easier climb from the other side. I don't think you'd mind riding on the truck I'll take you 'round."

He was blushing again. Nancy caught the idea that he had forced himself to make the offer out of politeness, and thus responded:

"Aren't you too busy?"

"Stockings!" said Nancy, and wondered if Matt following close behind in the narrow path, was blushing again. "My sport got lost at home, and she implored me to borrow a pair of Cousin Columbine's black cotton stockings. I think the last time I saw Cousin Columbine the day we came, that cotton stockings were manufactured any more."

"They're growing scarcer all the time," said Matthew gravely. "Even in Pine Ridge there's not much call for 'em and the high lace boot is out."

Nancy whirled about: "This was the strangest young man she had ever come across. One moment he wasammered with confusion, and the next was saying something as amazing as the unexpected. Their faces met as she turned, and they both laughed, and laughing, felt better acquainted.

"I wonder," remarked the girl as she started forward, "where Cousin Columbine gets her stockings."

"You made the boots?"

Nancy nodded because the trail was steeper here, and she found herself a little short of breath.

"Maybe she gets 'em where she gets the middies," suggested Matthew. "Slow down, Miss—er—er—"

"Miles! I'm not Victoria," said Nancy, without turning. "Was I going to fast?"

"Too fast for your own good, at this altitude. It takes time to get accustomed when you're transplanted from the sea level. Has your brother found a job?"

"Not yet, and he's pretty worried.

"Oh, just look at the Peak!" And——why I never imagined such a view. I didn't know there was anything like it in the world!"

"I'm sure you're pleased with her enthusiasm as he was responsible for the view himself."

"Keep on," he told her, "till you reach that old pine that's been struck by lightning. That tree is the highest point of the summit; and there's a fine view from its top."

"How could there be?" Nancy asked, breathless at the foot of the ancient tree. Plains, meadows, and mountains lay stretched before her—behind her—on every side; valleys that would be green as emeralds in summer, and in winter, a blizzard of peaks."

"It's almost too beautiful to be true," she said at last. "Why has no one ever built a home here on this spot?"

"I know what you mean," said Nancy, coming to his rescue, "though I think Cousin Columbine meant just what you're denying. It must be nice to have such enviable reputations! How did your mother manage it when you were babies?"

"She didn't mind telling him little, but it was kindly tact which made her bring the conversation back to his mother; and Matthew answered: "By being herself, I guess."

She was always on hand to help him, as people say, and she got into many scrapes, as some here. Her mother's a wonder; and Dad is too. I'm rather crazy about my people, but—"

"Are the showers so bad?"

"I—it wasn't a bit of trouble," stammered Matthew. "I mean—I didn't in the least mind—I—"

REWARD WHEAT

Last year our Reward wheat was degraded from No. 1 and from No. 1 Hard down to lower grades for the reason that a percentage of the kernels showed a bronze or green color. This discolouration, it has been found, was caused by the Reward wheat being cut on the green side. Apparently Marquis and Canadian wheat cut when green is green Reward. However, cannot farmers are recommended, therefore, to consider allowing their fields of Reward to ripen thoroughly before being cut.

Here and There

Fine performing stallions of the growing cavalry corps of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police are being trained for jumping and for the hunting field. One of the stables of Montebello, P.Q., on the north shore of the Ottawa, for the annual competition of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Thursday to Sunday, is a much-ridiculed one. It is the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The event is under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor General and Canadian and American society folk are expected in large numbers.

Booking a short stay at the Balfour Springs Hotel on his way to taking up his post in London, His Excellency, Mr. Masayoshi, Ambassador to Great Britain, stated to an interviewer, "I have just come from Australia to force a few days' rest. There are more arduous duties than the contemplation of lovely places."

Addressing a gathering of the Rotary Club of Victoria at the Empress Hotel, recently, Premier J. L. Ralston, of Alberta, pointed to the British recently as a great force for peace and good will in the world. "We are a considerable trade with our own country. Last year, he said, Australia had a trade with Canada to the value of $100,000,000 worth of goods, while Canada bought from Australia only $20,000,000 worth."

The Algonquin Hotel, St. Andrews, N.B., which has been closed for the summer season at the end of June, is now open again. The manager, Mr. W. H. Brewick, stated to the manager of the Hotel, "Our Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Governor, are here this week, and the famous Katy's Cove bathing beach is again as popular as ever. The beach is filled with the children and the young set."

The foreman reported that the jury was unable to reach a verdict. The judge reproved them, saying that the case was a very clear one and remanded them to the jury room for further deliberation.

"And if you don't reach an agreement before evening" the judge added, "I will have twelve suppers brought in to you."

"May it please your honor," the foreman replied, "You had better make it eleven suppers and one half of bay."
